COMMENT OF THE DAY

FOUR years have passed since lis-

L teners, by means of a Gallup Poll conducted by the Hongkong Telegraph, indicated their desire for early morning

programmes from Radio Hongkong.

Their wish is now about to be met, and if Government's response to public feeling has been tardy, the decision made at last affords some satisfaction.

The desirability of early morning sessions is prompted by more than one factor. Purely as a matter of service to listeners they constitute a normal feature of any present-day radio station; and in Hongkong, licence holders who pay their annual $20 fee.

have for a considerable time past felt they were not receiving the best value for their money. From both Radio

Hongkong and ZEK they are at present being offered seven to seven and a half hours of broadcasting every week day, spaced over two intervals. An additional two hours, making three broadcasting periods, are to be introduced next week.

Even this does not compare with the 16 to 18 hours a day which represent the normal broadcasting output for radio stations elsewhere in the world, but any additional service is welcome,

and local listeners will appreciate Radio

Hongkong's attempt to cater more fully for their needs. The two-hour pro-

COME discussion has arisen at Home over a statement which estimates

the highbrow population of Scotland at between 2,000 and 2,500, or about one in every 2,000. The authority who made this estimate was chiefly concerned to deride this refined class, so the Scots-man's Log goes out of its way to deride him in turn, by skilful raillery designed to show how impossible it is to make anything like an accurate estimate.

For example, Usher Hall could hold all the stated number of highbrows, and has in fact been filled during a highbrow concert. It is inconceivable, however, that every single highbrow in Scotland had been there on a single occasion. Theoretically Edinburgh would flow the greatest density of highbrows.

Washington, Nov. 30. Questions as to whether Japan should rearm to a limited extent and if so whether this would require a constitutional amendment are for the people of Japan to decide without outside pressure.

That is the view of the majority of American officials closely connected with diplomatic quarters in the Japanese area. Many of them, however, make no secret of the fact that they believe that some Japanese are "unrealistic" when they believe they can remain totally disarmed and make no contribution to collective security arrangements in the Pacific.

POLICY OR OPINION?

London, Nov. 30. Mr Oliver Lyttelton's hint at his Singapore Press conference yesterday that the British Government may "perhaps" reconsider recognition of Communist China has been received here with some surprise. First reaction came from

Mr Frederick Lee, Socialist MP, who put down a question for Mr Churchill immediately on reading the report of the Secretary of State for the Colonies' oneword reply to a questioner. He is to ask the Prime Minister next week whether Mr Lyttelton's

"statement" represents the policy of the Government, grammes from Radio Hongkong and the one-hour period from ZEK in the early morning, as outlined by a Government spokesman, suggests a modest conception of the form an early morning session should take. Listeners' interest and enjoyment, however, can be considerably sharpened by the manner in which the programmes are presented.

This, in radio jargon, is essentially a

"disc jockey" job, where script gives way to extemporisation and improvisation and the individuality and personality of the announcer in charge must be allowed full expression. Radio

Hongkong listeners can confidently look forward to the necessary light touches and sense of intimacy which are essential requirements for successful breakfast sessions because the station fortunately has the services of a trained announcer with considerable experience of this type of radio work. Given a reasonably free hand, which every early morning session "disc jockey" must have if his programmes are to hold listeners' interest and attention, there is no reason to doubt that Mr Phillips will make Radio Hongkong's early morning programmes entertaining and attractive, and that the innovation will showing. Distribution might in fact confute theory. Places like St Andrew or Dollar might be shown to have more highbrows per population than large urban areas. The investigator would surely require some kind of objective test for identifying highbrows, few of whom would admit the impeachment.

They belong to more than one type,

anyway, and some confirm the height of their brows by passionate addiction to lowbrow pursuits. But no matter how few or how many they are, they are to be regarded as a credit to the nation, and the writer of the Log urges

they be found a place of sanctuary

"GET OUT OF THE SUDAN"

Egypt told Britain tonight to get out of the Sudan because she had no right to be there. The Egyptian Foreign Minister, Salah el Din Bey, told a press conference that in the Sudanese plebiscite he proposed there could be only two choices - union with Egypt or independence. There could be no question, he said, of Sudanese unification with Britain.

"We do not consider the United Kingdom has any legal status at all in the Sudan," he said. Egypt will reply formally to the recent British White Book on Anglo-Egyptian relations, he added, in a Book to be issued shortly in Cairo.

PROPOSE today to discuss baldness among members of Parliament. I know it sounds an irreverent approach to politics. but as you will understand shortly it has an important bearing on the management and welfare of the country. and is therefore a legitimate topic for discussion.

You see it is largely by the tops of their heads that parliamentary reporters in the Press Gallery identify the speakers on the floor below, and if they weren't proficient in their headtop recognition there'd be absolute chaos throughout the country. Nobody would know who had said what.

I was struck by this aspect of public life when went to the gallery have a look at the new House, and noticed that now they've changed sides, like fielders at cricket, the scenery is entirely differ-

FF YOU were to ask one of the most dazzlingly beautiful women of the theatre for her most precious beauty secret, you'd get a surprising answer-SERENITY!

Neckties Make Feminine Pretties

By ELEANOR ROSS

NOW it begins-that raid on eckties, as nimble - fingered women devise all sorts of pretties out of handsome masculine neckwear.

But before we outline some of the ideas and suggestions we have, we'll do right by first giving instructions to do a good job of washing said ties, something that you'll want to do as well, before starting on the

Lukewarm Water

Wash tie in lukewarm water and heavy, mild suds. Holding tie across the palm of hands, use a brush on any heavily soiled places, and wash again if necessary. Rinse thoroughly. Roll tic up and squeeze out moisture. Dip in light starch solution to restore body. Hang over rack or line at centre of tie. Shape gently with fingers, with particular attention to creases along the edge. Or, lay flat on ironing board and remove moisture with a turkish towel.

Press before completely dry. Cut a piece of thin cardboard to shape of tie, and slip it inside tie. Steam-press, first on wrong side; then turn and press on right side, using cheesecloth press cloth. Remove cardboard and press along edges.

Tie Cummerbund

Takes three ties to make a cummerbund, but the job is not difficult. Those vertical striped heavy silks would be beautiful

. Cut off larger half of each tie, rip open and remove lining. Press flat. Stitch pieces together to form front midriff.

Stitch two strips of seam binding lengthwise on each side, five inches from centre front, then insert stays. Overcast seam binding at both ends of stays. Braid narrow part of ties (do not open) to form waistband at back, and join to midriff. Cut of extra length. Fasten with hooks and eyes at one side.

Cocktail aprons, quilts and whole costumes in patchwork can be made by cutting up neckties in squares, diamond and other irregular shapes.

First, remove lining and press ties open. Stitch pieces together and outline joined places with feather-stitching. Use narrow end of ties for border trim and apron sash. Use lining of ties to line aprons. Cocktail Apron

Another style of cocktail apron can be made from three ties. Rip and press open but do not remove lining. Cut in 18-inch lengths from wide end up. Stitch ties together lengthwise, leaving pointed ends to form front border finish. Use narrow ends of ties for sash. If extra lining is needed, piece out with matching material.

Vegetables Can Be Kept Fresh For A Year

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

American scientists are experimenting with a new chemical spray that may keep vegetables fresh for a vear or more, the farm magazine Country Gentleman reports.

The spray is called malele hydrazide (MH).

Successful

Horticulturists at Michigan S'ate College (East Lansing Michigan) have made successful tests with the spray on onions, potatoes, beets, carrots, parsnips, and rutabagas. It will take another year, however, before conclusive evidence is obtained as to the lasting effects of the chemical, according to the U.S. Lepartment of agriculture, The chemical is currently being manufactured for experimental purposes only.

Maleic hydrazide is sprayed on the tuber crops several weeks before harvest time. The treatment arrests growth of the plants, but does not affect the crop yield. When the crops are harvested and stored there is no sprouting-a condition that often causes spoilage. Danger of spoilage from heat generated by stored vegetables also is stopped by use of MH. It slows respiration within the plant itself and lowers the tempera-

Flavour Unchanged

Every living process in the plants is slowed down, but flavour and firmness of the vegetables are retained. The crops used in the Michigan State College experiments were caten after being stored for a year, and no change in flavour or odour was noted. Cooking was found to be superior to that of untreated vegetables.

Commercial sugar best in the chemical spray, since it has been found that beets do lose much sugar after being treated with MH and stored. Treated beets lost less than one percent of their total sugar content, while untreated beets lost more than 13 percent. MH also is being tested on sweet corn and peas. Both lose their quanty quickly after harvesting and require rapid handling by packers. Scientists believe MH may stop this deterioration.

A dream is one way in which your sub-conscious mind attempts to remind you of something you would prefer to forget. By disguising its message in symbols, it tries to get past the resistance of your conscious mind

This dream, for instance, is trying to advise you not to be conceited. You feel yourself in an elevated position (on the roof); socially superior to your girl friend and her companion (you wear evening dress, they don't). Presumably because she dares to think of other men, you fing your funcied social superiority at her to annoy her (you throw a slate).

But you fail (the slate comes back)—and rightly, too. At the moment you seem to be in love with your own funcied superiority; in love with your own fancied superiority; in the families from take it all in their stride

JERE has been a run on hot-water bottles here during the past few days, and this coming week it is likely to be stepped up, as the RAF'S PTC 23 swings into full action.

PTC 23 (the initials stands for Personal Transit ('entre) is one of the organisations set up to take care of the wives and children of RAF and Army men who have been evacuated from the Canal

And the first thing that wives find they want, after coming from Egypt's warmth, is a hot-water bottle. NAAFI have noted the fact, and will not again have to knock up local chemists for supplies on a Sunday, as they did when the first party of evacuees arrived.

This week there will not be, as in the past, occasional aeroplane loads of evacuees water Bottle" is now in full E. F. Nind. swing, and one aeroplane load a day is arriving.

PTC 23 is housed in, a red-brick promenade hotel, with a "For sale" notice in one of its windows on Blackpool's North Shore. It is staffed by 70 RAF and Army personnel hand picked for their human approach to life.

TAR NIGEL BIRCH, Under - Secretary for Air, announced in the Commons that the partial evacuation of Service families is being made from the Canal Zone. Four thousand

'Mediterranean cruise'

But if PTC 23 is taking the operation very much in its stride, so too are the wives. Some that we saw had hardly got to Egypt before they were sent home; some had been there long enough to grow roots. None seemed to think it anything out of the way to have had to bring a family of say three children under ten on a two-day aeroplane-train-coach trip after being given only a few hours' notice to leave. We did not encounter one grumbler.

I met Mrs E. P. Fryett, of Hastings, recently of Ismailia. Mrs Fryett, wife of a flightsergeant, had already caught a cold. She brought her children, David (12), Peter (10) and Linette (5) home by ship.

"Quite the Mediterranearn cruise," she said. "We called at Naples, Marseilles and Gibraltar."

High-chairs free

At a private hotel just off the sea front, we found 10 wives and 17 children. Mrs Nora Ditchfield, the proprietress, said: "They've really settled themselves in wonderfully; they've been very good."

The RAF have provided free high-chairs for infants, and Mrs Ditchfield's five - year - old daughter Shella had made the visitors free of her rocking horse and other toys.

The visitors get three meals day-breakfast, luncheon, and high tea at five; and the house was quiet, Mrs Ditchfield said, by about seven in the evening.

While we were there the children gave to everything an atmosphere of holiday, while their mothers patiently wrestled with large civilian buff forms relating to family allowances.

In Egypt they received colonial allowances, which in the case of the flight-sergeant's wife I spoke to, added up to a vested the whole operation total net income of £82 a month.

Sheffield United Setting Too Hot A Pace For Themselves?

London.

Home soccer fans are asking if Sheffield United are not setting too hot a pace for themselves in the race for the Second Division Championship. A fortnight ago, following a run of eight successive home victories, they crashed to Nottingham Forest. Last week at Griffin Park they were beaten 4-1 by Brentford, who on this showing seem much more like promotion prospects.

SOUTH CHINA—SAINTS MATCH THE WEEK-END PROGRAMME HIGHLIGHT

By "GRANDSTAND"

While all Softballers faithfully believe in the saying that while there's life there's hope, there comes a time in every series in which teams find themselves facing the crucial moment when an adverse decision might very well wreck all their chances for the coveted bunting which represents diamond supremacy.

Still clutching at the last straw, South China, with four losses against them, will face the high-riding Saints at 11.00 a.m. tomorrow in a last stand to feature the Senior "A" Division schedule, while the Pandas are all set to have another crack at the Overseas who handed them a humiliating shutout experience a month ago in their first-round encounter.

An interesting Junior League tussle is also carded for this afternoon with the Griffins and Pandas striving to better each other, while the powerful Wahoos meet the Squaws in a return engagement in the Ladies' Loop.

TAKE a tip from the Western ranchers and round up your mavericks. Then set your own brand on them!

A cattle brand is simply a mark of ownership. Marking your own large and small posressions can be as useful to you us it is to the rancher. On the ranges a rosming calf without a brand becomes the property of the cowboy who finds it. Haven't you noticed that about the same thing happens to unmarked small articles in locker rooms, at swimming pools, and on hikes? Branding handkerchiefs, scarves, notebooks, overshoes, gloves and many other personal possessions will make it easier for you to keep track of them Cowboys spend hours working out their personal brands, (They use a stick on a smoothed-over sandy spot, but you can do as well with paper and pencil.) Everyone of them hopes to use his brand some day when he Decomes a big rancher. So even if you never see a cow you can make your own brand. If you can have a castle in Spain, why can't you have a cattle ranch in z imagination?

SATURDAY, DECEMBER

BORN today you are a natural leader and instinctively know how to get along with all tinds of people. Your home dies are strong and your own family means a great de I to your ultimate happiness. Being a horn manager, you dislike having others interfere in your affairs and you obsorb responsibility with the greatest of ease. In a position of executive responsibility, you should go far in almost any field of endeavour that you select. Careless Playing Aids Opponents

Rather quiet and reserved in manner, you have an affectionale nature and are always seeing the best in anyone. This positive, optimistic attitude is a great asset to you and your natural kindliness makes it almost impossible for you to speak its of anyone.

You have a keen mind and one that is capable of making exact and honourable judgments. Your one handicap, perhaps, is that you are interested in too many different things at one time. As a consequence. you are inclined to scatter your talents too widely. Learn to concentrate in one branch of knowledge and become a recognised expert. Then you can dabble in as many other things as you may wish. You have creative talent in the arts but may not always utilise this gift

You will be happiest if you wed early in life and have a large family of your own. Exert caution in the selection of a life partner. You are destined to advance rapidly. In line with this is the rather peculiar fact that both the Army and the Club have just managed to defeat the Navy by one point in their last matches, and according to some, both teams should have succumbed to the Naval forwards. However, be that as it may, the fact remains that on paper there is absolutely no difference in the points standing of these two teams.

In the back division the Club have a very strong defensive line with behind them a fullback of proven ability. The Club halves are without doubt the best in the Colony while the forwards are known for their never-give-up quality.

To match this the Army have a very fast and tricky back line and to feed them they have a very fine pair of halves, who play good attacking football and are very sound in defence.

The Army eight, while maybe not in the past as noticeable as the Club men, have some fine players amongst them and are capable of going flat out for the

Ramming Of Irawler

La Rochelle, Nov. 30. The French Minister of the Merchant Navy, M. Morice, today informed the fishing fleet owner, M. Max Brusset, of La Rochelle, that he had asked the Spanish Government to inquire into the circumstances under which an iron-hulled Spanish trawler last week rammed a wooden La Rochelle trawler, causing damage estimated at 1,800,000 francs.

Captain Paul Raude, of the local trawler Maria Francesca. said that he was fishing off Yeu Island when he spotted two Spanish trawlers from Vigo trawling with the trawl stretched between the two ships.

This form of trawling is forbidden in French waters. According to Raude, a violent discussion ensued between the crews and one of the Vigo ships finally rammed the Maria Francesca, which took 15 hours to limp home.

The Minister told M. Brusset that the Bordeaux Port Authority had been instructed to ask the Spanish Consul in Bordeaux for an inquiry to be made in
